High School Students Art Show – Inspirational

Marion Art Center
By Marilou Newell

There is something extraordinary happening at the Marion Art Center right now. Under the direction of Jodi Stevens and the board of directors, a new course has been charted, one that brings local youth to the forefront of the local art world.

With the launch of the MAC’s Young Artist Program, a collaboration between the center and regional high schools has developed. It is no small task given the current state of humankind in a world gripped by a pandemic. And yet therein is the bud that has blossomed as students tackled themes of mental health, gender identification, and virus-related consequences in a show that asked the question, “What are you looking forward to after the pandemic?” Open now until April 15, the MAC’s walls are filled with visual art projects that answer that question with surprising insight and talent that belies the artists’ chronological ages.

Rachel Pina is a senior at Old Rochester Regional High School. Her digitally crafted self-portrait, “Won’t Change for Us,” takes a look at the Black Lives Matter movement through the eyes of a person of color.

“People are standing up, but it can die down again. People forget,” says Pina, who is seen wearing sunglasses. One of the lenses reflects back to the viewer what she sees, a rally and march. The black and white tones add to the theme Pina chose. She said that using digital tools is as artistically satisfying as traditional drawing and painting. Pina plans on going to an art show once she graduates, focusing on animation with adult themes she can reimagine for younger audiences.

Margaret Berry is a photographer who enjoys taking pictures and seeing where they lead. She said she often waits until she sees the images before deciding the themes they may express. Her two black-and-white images explore LGBTQIA topics. In one, a young man smiles joyously at the shrouded head of another model, asking the question, “Who are you?” In the other, both models have obscured faces, but their hands appear to reach to one another. “It’s about finding love and who we are,” Berry stated. A senior at ORR, Berry plans on studying film at university. She recently earned honorable mention from the Scholastic Art and Writing Alliance, an independent organization that has been recognizing young visual artists and writers since 1923.

Also earning recognition from the SAWA is Taylor Green, a senior at ORR. Green said she has been creating art her entire life, but it was about five years ago she began thinking about the possibility of a career in art. She finds creating “exciting.” Green’s SAWA award won her a silver key for her submission, “Schooled,” now on display at the MAC. She also won honorable mention for...
“Popcorn,” which is also part of the high school student show. Green said, “‘Schooled’ was a spontaneous piece I did the night before my project was due in class.” She said it shows the swift passage of time. “Popcorn” “literally came to me when I was making popcorn for my family,” she said with a chuckle. Green said it is a study of reflection and altered perspectives. She is unsure what path to take after graduation, but she will definitely be pursuing art studies. “Where to go is up in the air right now.”

Autumn Tilley, a junior at ORR, explored themes of mental health in her three submissions, two of which were digital creations and one using pen and watercolors. “The girl facing the colors is happy; the other girl is in darkness,” Tilley began. She said the piece titled “Disengaged” does not mean that one girl won’t find happiness but that for now, she is stuck. In another picture, we see a disembodied pair of feet crossing a narrow bridge from the perspective of looking down into a pool of “chaos.”

“She’s traversing the static, the disorder in the abyss, on the edge of sanity but holding on. She doesn’t want to jump in,” Tilley shared. The watercolor-and-pen painting takes a look at the world through the eyes of someone dealing with obsessive-compulsive disorder, Tilley explained. Titled “Rods and Cones,” the face shows no emotion while the eyes are at once both suffering and strong. Tilley will be attending university to study animation and computer science.

William Stark’s submissions are unique in the show. He carved a rich half hull and a sailboat. Stark works part-time at a local furniture store where he has learned woodworking skills along with those taught by his father. Talking about his entries, Stark said that the sailboat was inspired by a photograph a friend took of him on his own boat. “I love sailing,” he said. The half hull is of a famous J-class sailboat, the “Rainbow.”

Speaking of rainbows, Isabel Friedrichs incorporated those in her ceramics submission. The three pieces Friedrichs is showing at the MAC span several years’ worth of effort. And when all were accepted, she was surprised. “Fortune Cookies” is three giant-sized cookies with a large scrolled message reading, “Hugs are life’s rainbows.” She also created a Converse sneaker representing keepsakes in the form of clothing articles, special editions, that is. And last but not least, she created a backpack representing transitions and issues her brother would be facing as he left home to enter university. She said she had never participated in an art show before. “I usually give my art away as gifts,” she said. Friedrich is a junior at ORR and plans on finishing out her high school career as a ceramist.

Kate Butler is an art teacher at Old Rochester Regional Junior High and High School. Regarding the program that is giving the students the opportunity to display their creations to the public, Butler said, “I’m very happy for the students.” She said it gave them exposure to other aspects of bringing art to a public venue, such as writing descriptions for items on display, submitting their pieces for consideration by the center’s show committee, and even pricing pieces for sale.

“It’s a chance for them to see other parts of producing art,” said Butler, noting that most of her students are considering art as a career or as a component to a wider educational track. She credits art with giving

The student a vehicle to “help them process what’s been going on.” She said that, despite the need to work from home, only having a few precious minutes each week to receive instruction in a virtual manner, that the students have “produced deep and meaningful pieces.”

Butler summarized the students’ experience this way: “This is a great opportunity for the students to access real-life aspects of how art can interact with the public even during a pandemic…. It unites people…. It helps them to process their feelings…. It’s a bright spot.”

Tricia Smith, chair of the Visual Art Department at Tabor Academy, said the Young Art Program at the MAC gives students a way of processing the pandemic. She said many students employed digital-art software programs and tools to create their pieces. “It’s painting and drawing on a screen,” Smith explained. She said the principles of drawing are there but “using a different toolbox. It’s been wonderful to introduce the students to this latest technology; it’s really relevant right now. It’s a real-world experience.” Smith also talked about augmented reality, in which computer enhancements can turn a static object into three dimensions or create animated movement from old masters’ works. “This is what is next,” she stated. Smith added that she is proud and pleased with how well the students have navigated remote learning and hybrid classes. “They have handled these transitions remarkably well.”

The exhibit also includes an entire wall of photography from students of New Bedford High School. The images range from structural to personal, from emotionally charged to static, and show the breadth of their world outside school. Those students are Yadeliz Dominguez, Elexus Nunes, Alex Soares, Keira Kolostyak, Janpier Medina, Jen Andrade, Jarien Cardeiras, Kayle Forgue, Delcy Martinez, and Alan Rodriguez.

A Not-So-Common Buzzard
By George B. Emmons
Although there are no less than 48 species of raptors that fall into this category for which Buzzards Bay is named, only 28 are true buzzards classified as ‘buteos.’ They are slightly smaller than eagles but have very broad wings that they lock to rise on currents of warm air, to be seen soaring like turkey vultures, to locate their prey. They can also be identified sitting on a seaside fence post looking out across the bay, which is called ‘still hunting.’ They nest in a tree like an eagle or on a cliff with a substantial construction built with sticks and laying only several eggs to reproduce their bird-watching, iconic treasures of observation.

As in my illustration, the buzzard plumage of most species is essentially mottled dark brown with tail and underside with matching plumage. There is much variation of pigmentation even within individuals of a single species. I have purposely drawn my bird clutching a bluefish for seaside foraging imagery, although they normally are more of a scavenger of low-tide shorelines for washed-up, small maritime refuge or crayfish. As they also are on a carnivorous diet in woodland and countryside, their favorite prey can be rabbits, rodents, reptiles, and other birds that fall to their predation.

Today’s ethnomological classification of bird names and nomenclature seems to describe a bird’s appearance and behavior as human beings and views it based upon one outstanding identifying characteristic. But this terminology has not followed the taxonomic accuracy of the interrelationship of species.

The binomial system of classification we use was devised in the 18th century by Swedish botanist Carl Linnaeus. In his system, every living thing is given two names: the first a genus or general grouping, and secondly, a certain species within that group. Thus, without the use of binomials, the word ‘buzzard’ dates back to medieval England, where the buteo, or hawk, was considered the same bird.

The first explorer of Buzzards Bay was Bartholomew Gosnold from England, who landed on the island of Cuttyhunk in 1602. Gosnold was so impressed with the natural beauty of the bay, he might well have indulged in poetic license in selecting the proliferation of bird species to name the bay.

Both the buzzards and the ospreys were well known in England at the time, the latter characterized in the works of William Shakespeare. When I ran this article and illustration past retired Millicent Library Director Carolyn Longworth, she advised that Gosnold might have had in mind ospreys, buteo hawks, or both, as they were also plentiful at that time of the year.

Worst Roads Will Get Priority Treatment

Marion Board of Selectmen
By Mick Colageo

Marion’s roads are suffering to degrees that have been analyzed by contracted engineers and divided into proactive and reactive categories, the former 1.22 miles of roadway addressing the more urgent needs and prescribing more substantial measures.

Department of Public Works Director David Willett and DPW Engineer Meghan Davis appeared in the March 16 meeting of the Marion Board of Selectmen to present a program to be implemented over the next six to eight months.

Four roads fall into the prioritized proactive category: Water, Holmes, and School Streets, and Parlowtown Road; 1,057 feet of Parlowtown Road and 449 feet of School Street will receive a mill-and-overlay treatment, while 2,576 feet of Water Street and 2,345 feet of Holmes Street will receive a hot-mix overlay. The price tag is $117,946.33, with a 20-percent inflation contingency total of $141,535.60.

The plan, said Willett, is to advertise for construction bids in mid-April and award the contract in May with a target date of mid-summer construction.

The bidding process for the longer list of 15 roads (4.12 miles) requiring a total of $26,577.99 ($31,893.59 with a 20-percent inflation contingency) in routine crack-seal maintenance will be separately handled, according to Willett. Converse Road is on that list, but not its full length.

Davis told the selectmen that routine maintenance will not require road closures and that the work on any one area “should only take a few days.” She intends to visit the work on Converse Road to ensure that the right repairs are being performed in the right locations.

According to Willett, the purchase of a crack-seal trailer would provide the town the best value to keep its roads in shape long-term, and he envisions that, at some point, the town would consider purchasing such a trailer for its road maintenance fleet.

“The only thing we haven’t considered starting yet is our meals,” said Cambra, as the COA is replacing its walk-in freezer and refrigerator.

Other upgrades for 2021 include new lighting in the parking lot that was financed mostly by the Friends of the Senior Center, the COA’s private fundraising arm.

March is also the first month that Rochester’s COA has been able to include activities in its newsletter. With a new publisher since January 1, only the pandemic has limited the newsletters that will soon be available on a monthly basis.

point, the work can be done in-house. “In the future, I hope to bring several programs to the board so the board can choose which (roads) are treated first,” he said.

Selectman John Waterman noted that Marion has $1.2 million in Chapter 90 funds to draw from to cover the cost.

Selectman Norm Hills addressed paint traps on Route 6, saying there are “some pretty bad holes out there.” Willett said he would reach out to the state Department of Transportation on the matter.

Town Administrator Jay McGrail told the selectmen that the warrant for the May 10 Town Meeting would be closed on Tuesday, April 6.

After fielding Waterman’s questions about the
The article related to dog owners, McGrail said he would work with Police Chief Richard Nighelli and new Police Lieutenant Jeff Habicht on coming up with a user guide that can be accessed at marionma.gov, the town’s website. Waterman suggested mailing out a paper copy with dog license renewal forms. Habicht’s contract as a police lieutenant was approved during Tuesday’s meeting.

The Town Meeting warrant was discussed, and the article presenting the water bylaw will not include the shut-off policy that remains in the town’s rules and regulations. Chairman Randy Parker suggested detailing the two new trucks that will appear on the warrant.

In his Town Administrator’s Report, McGrail said a piling up of classroom equipment has taken the gymnasium out of play for Town Meeting at Sippican School. The library is substantially smaller, but McGrail said a room dedicated solely to COVID-vaccinated residents at 3 feet of social distancing would create adequate space.

Sippican School has a new 60-by-30-foot tent for an outdoor learning space, mask breaks, and recess in subpar weather. The tent was paid for by state funds. The Cushing Community Center will begin hosting Council on Aging programs in its heated tent on April 1. COVID-vaccination certificates are not required but are “highly recommended.”

Citing Marion’s gray-community status, McGrail is looking to reopen the Town House to the public on Monday, May 5, and in-person public meetings may come back in April pending continued success against the coronavirus.

Scott Tavares, a teacher at Old Rochester Regional High School, was introduced as the town’s new recreation director, as Jody Dickerson has been transitioned to DPW. Tavares is working 19.5 hours per week for the town. “Scott’s got heavy lifting to do,” said McGrail, noting that both positions are being transitioned on a trial basis for the employees’ sake as well as the town’s.

Adam Lambert, a six-year ORR teacher, will fill the part-time role as assistant director of the Recreation Department. Nate Vaughn stepped away from the position after “nine great years to the department,” said Tavares.

McGrail planned to post an advertisement for a new DPW director on Wednesday with an April 16 application deadline. Willett plans to stay part-time until June 30 and continue into the fall as a consultant. McGrail reported that Brewster and Randolph are also currently seeking a new DPW director.

Open Space Acquisition Commission Chairman John Rockwell was on hand to explain a Conservation Restriction on Little Neck Village to protect endangered species.

The matter, said Rockwell, dates back to 2008, but various quirks in the law and twists, turns and dormant periods extended the matter to 2021. Rockwell credited the Sippican Lands Trust for a very reasonable fee to act as the third party required to hold the Conservation Restriction.

Parker abstained from a vote, but Hills and Waterman voted to approve the Conservation Restriction. The board thanked Rockwell for his persistence in seeing the matter through.

In other business, the selectmen approved the nomination of Sue Connor and Adam Murphy as inspectors of animals under Animal Control. The board approved the Marion Art Center’s request for street closures on July 10 between 9:00 am and 5:00 pm for its annual Arts in the Park event. The rain date is July 11. The board also approved Margie Baldwin’s request to declare April 30 Arbor Day in Marion.

The selectmen will next meet as Water & Sewer Commissioners on Thursday, March 25, at 4:00 pm. The next meeting of the Marion Board of Selectmen is scheduled for Tuesday, April 6, at 4:00 pm.

Coming before the Mattapoisett Finance Committee on March 11 was Fire Chief Andrew Murray to review and discuss his department’s FY22 budget. As he had when recently meeting with the Board of Selectmen and Capital Planning Committee, Murray pointed out...

that he wants to restore the full-time administration position that he said had been removed just before last spring’s Town Meeting.

Murray said that there would be continuity in duties by having a dedicated administrative clerk, and the position would also cover dispatching responsibilities during weekdays. Murray said that if the full-time position was reestablished, he could reduce the on-call budget by $10,000. That line item currently stands at $14,000. All other budget items are level-funded, he said, with a roughly 2-percent step increase for personnel.

One budget item that will grow due to the new fire station is one titled “buildings and grounds.” Murray said that while the staff takes care of such maintenance needs as painting and grass cutting, other areas require maintenance contracts such as the garage doors. He increased the budget for those areas of the new structure and grounds from $7,000 to $12,000.

Touching on Capital Planning needs, Murray shared concerns that Engine 4 will need to be replaced in FY22, although it currently sits in the column for FY23. He explained the deterioration of the aging fire apparatus, saying, “It has outlived its life expectancy by 10 years,” and due to the care it had received throughout the years, it has lasted until now. “We take good care of our equipment.”

Murray said, at the request of Capital Planning, he was in the process of establishing a committee to begin the research and cost-estimating process needed to advance the potential purchase during a Fall Town Meeting. Currently, he estimates a new engine at $525,000 and added, “Because our current station couldn’t fit a new engine, we had to wait this long.” It could take more than a year to bring a new fire engine to the department if voters approve the purchase, it was noted.

The balance of the meeting focused on the overall FY22 operating budget draft presented by Town Administrator Mike Lorenco.

Lorenco went department by department, nearly line by line, pointing out areas of increase or savings, line items new to the spreadsheet, and areas that could be removed or added to other areas, all in an effort to create a more thorough and comprehensive budget in step with the town’s growth.

As discussions turned to schools, Lorenco again railed against an assessment being requested by Bristol County Agricultural High School for a new building. He said the towns had had no say in incurring the debt, were never notified, and that he planned to have a discussion with the county commissioners who oversee the school’s actions. He said that Mattapoisett is facing a $24,000 assessment based on four students at $6,000 each. But he said neighboring town Rochester was facing far more, a whopping $80,000. “I’m not budgeting that until I get answers,” he assured the committee.

Other school line items on the draft budget are:
local schools at $7,917,170 versus FY21 at $7,667,725; Old Rochester Regional School District FY21 at $6,350,727 versus FY22 at $7,665,725; and Old Colony Regional Vocational Technical High School at $836,989 versus FY21 at $678,841. Lorenco commented that schools absorb more than 4 percent of the town’s total budget; therefore, looking at decreasing enrollment needs further study. He expressed concern about a greater tax burden on property owners.

Regarding the upcoming election of a new highway surveyor, Lorenco said that Mattapoisett is one of a handful of towns in the commonwealth that still has an elected highway surveyor and that nearly all towns have departments of public works. Having said that, he feels that an incoming surveyor with less experience should also receive compensation commensurate to her or his degree of expertise. Lorenco suggested a starting salary of $75,000. He also said he would be reviewing salary guidelines after a review of other towns with elected surveyors.

Lorenco touched on the Other Post-Employment Benefits category (OPEB) and said the town’s expected FY22 payout as mandated by the Plymouth County Retirement Board is $182,387 based on a total debt of $1,494,792 versus FY21 at $1,312,405. He said he is required to pay whatever the department assesses.

On March 10, the Capital Planning Committee met with Harbormaster Jamie McIntosh, who reviewed such matters as grants received for improvements to Long Wharf totaling $216,000 with a required municipal match of $54,000 in FY22. He said that $75,000 was placed in FY23 for repairs and improvements to floating docks.

McIntosh also discussed a $30,000 grant executed by Urban Harbors Institute that he wishes to pursue for a harbor-management plan. He confessed that the selectmen had not fully supported the study but believed such a document would help position the town when pursuing grants in the future. He also said it would help to establish gaps in regulatory compliance that could then be addressed. He said the town has never had a fully drafted harbor management plan and hopes to present this request at a Fall Town Meeting.

McIntosh said that the selectmen were also not overly supportive of a new harbormaster’s office that he had plugged into a future column as far out as a decade from now. He said that, while the current building serves its purpose, it does not have restroom facilities or adequate heating for a full-time harbormaster.

Lorenco pointed out the importance of having everything listed on the Capital Planning spreadsheet, not only for fiscal insights but also for Town Meeting voting purposes. “If it isn’t on the list, it would require a two-thirds majority to fund in the same year,” he said.

The next meeting of the Mattapoisett Capital Planning Committee is scheduled for Wednesday, March 24, at 6:00 pm, and the next meeting of the Mattapoisett Finance Committee is scheduled for Wednesday, March 17, at 4:00 pm.

Schools Looking for Level-Services Budget
Marion Finance Committee
By Mick Colageo

Old Rochester Regional Superintendent of Schools Mike Nelson told the March 15 joint meeting of the Marion Finance Committee and Board of Selectmen that the Fiscal Year 2022 budget for Sippican School will see a 2.43-percent increase, and the FY22 budget for the ORR School District will see a 2.47-percent increase. These percentages do not count the assessment made by Bristol County Agricultural High School, one that Town Administrator Jay McGrail has repeatedly told elected officials he has no intention of paying. Marion is among several towns disputing the assessment based on debt, of which non-member towns have no control.

McGrail commended Nelson, ORR Assistant Superintendent of Finance and Operations Howie Barber, and the Marion School Committee for achieving “a level-services budget, or as close as we could (get).”

The first draft left Marion with a $170,000 shortfall, but after huddling with Marion Finance Director Judy Mooney, McGrail said a subsequent meeting with ORR administration resulted in a workable solution for both sides.

The general operating funds for FY22 are $6,456,815 for Sippican School and $19,895,966 for ORR, factoring in the Bristol Aggie assessment of $126,744.

“We really appreciate the work that they did,” McGrail told Marion’s elected officials. “The budget they are presenting has Judy’s and my support.”

“I don’t want to be looking at a fix.... I want to be looking at a two, a three, a five-year plan,” said Barber, alluding to his recent illness that postponed the joint meeting originally scheduled for March 2.

Barber told the meeting that he started from scratch building the FY22 budget on department-based goals and establishing what he called an “all-funds budget,” factoring in grants and other funding sources that allowed him to operate on that approach.
Finance Committee member Karen Kevelson questioned a $56,000 line item for substitute teachers at Sippican, a number that projects to 2.78 substitutes per day at the elementary school.

Barber explained that the year-to-year item covers maternity leave and other long-term absences. Without such coverage, Barber said the school would have to invest in a long-term substitute at a greater expense. He said, based on the current union contract, the minimum is $254 per day. The Masters 1 category, he said, costs $280 per day and, at 45 days or more (long-term), is a minimal expense of $13,000.

In discussing the ORR budget for FY22, Barber said the district has been approved to add a Chapter 74 vocational program and therefore added a paraprofessional in that area. To compensate, he said, the position of director of guidance was reduced and eliminated from the budget, and in its place, a $7,000 consultant was added.

Technological upgrades via grant and other funding sources led to the need to install a computer science laboratory in the Junior High School. To compensate, ORR is not filling a position being vacated by a retirement.

According to Barber, ORR’s $21,175,000 total operating budget for FY22 constitutes a $500,000 increase over $20,673,628 for FY21. With offsets, the FY22 number is still at $21,174,638.

FinCom member Shay Assad suggested a deeper dive into the long-term impact of ORR’s school-choice policy.

While members of the Finance Committee shared growing concern over a lack of control in spending and implied the need to establish subcommittees in order to better evaluate enrollment trends and the necessity of services, Marion School Committee member Heather Burke argued that a decrease in services could result in greater expense for the town paying out assessments to out-of-district schools educating Marion’s children.

Assad, FinCom Chairman Peter Winters, and other members thanked Barber and Nelson for the significant improvement in transparency through the budget process.

Like his message to the town a year ago, Winters reiterated his interest in more information, saying he would like to also see hard figures in line item costs that he said become obscured by the budgeting process and presentation.

The public hearing for the school budget will be held on March 24. FinCom will also entertain a vote that night on McGrail’s presentation of the draft warrant for the Annual Town Meeting. McGrail said, if there are problems, they can meet again on March 31.

The budget schedule will culminate with the April 6 closing of the warrant of articles for the May 10 Town Meeting and its April 13 submission to the printer.

The next meeting of the Marion Finance Committee is scheduled for Wednesday, March 24, at 7:00 pm.

Access Roads Complicate Solar Projects

Rochester Conservation Commission

By Matthew Donato

The Rochester Conservation Commission met on March 16 to address a public hearing on the Cushman Road solar project. Having last discussed the matter on January 27, commission members were eager to hear updates to the project and potentially close out the ongoing discussion.

The applicant’s representative, Eric Las of Beals +
Thomas Inc., informed commission members that he had been working alongside his team to address the requested changes put forth in a letter by the commission’s peer-review consultant, Horsley Witten Group. Las reported that the changes have been made and were included in the most recent rendition of the plan set.

The updated plans meant that the majority of Las’ business with the commission was nearing its end. Progress on the site is now primarily hindered by abutters’ multiple disputes surrounding access to the proposed array. The disputes stem from the fact that the proposed access road would travel directly through two abutters’ properties.

Las has been working with the Rochester Planning Board to find potential solutions to develop an access road to the site that will satisfy the abutters. That said, the project cannot move forward to construction without an established plan to resolve the conflicts surrounding the access road.

The commission agreed that, since issues relating to the conservation jurisdiction on the site were resolved, there was no reason that the public hearing should continue. Commission members did warn Las that any amendments to the plans that fall under commission jurisdiction as a result of any changes to the access road would necessitate a refiling with the commission. Las acknowledged the concern and requested that the public hearing be closed. The Conservation Commission voted unanimously to close the public hearing on the project.

Moving on to represent the Snipatuit Road Solar Project, Las informed commission members of a complication arising on the site as a result of his discussions with the Rochester fire chief. Las explained that in previous discussions with the Fire Department, he had been informed that the existing 12-foot-wide access road to the proposed solar array would be sufficient. However, as plans for the array began to develop, Las was notified that the access road needs to be widened to 16 feet in order to facilitate the travel of fire trucks in the case of emergency.

Las told the commission that fire trucks had previously traversed the existing access road without issue to respond to a brush fire a few years ago. Despite that, the new requirement for a wider road is still being advocated for and causes new problems for the site.

The Planning Board is requiring the larger access road to the site to satisfy public safety concerns. Unfortunately for the applicant, the existing road is bordered on both sides by wetland areas. This means that for Las to effectively expand the road, he will need to fill a portion of the nearby wetlands.

Las informed commission members that his goal throughout development has been to avoid impacting wetlands areas in any way and that his plans reflect that desire. Since the inception of the planning phase, Las has reduced the site’s total area by 1 acre to minimize impact.
During the March 15 meeting of the board, Robbins said that the Flood Hazard Bylaw was essentially unchanged except for mapping changes required by updates at the state level. She said that the coastal areas remain but that more areas were added, encompassing wetlands and other locations previously not noted.

The Solar Bylaw has been in the making for more than a year, with Robbins once again driving that initiative. Robbins has studied bylaws that other communities have incorporated into their regulatory standards and attended seminars covering a variety of solar-related topics.

As was noted during the board’s reopening of the site plan review for a proposed solar array planned on Randall Lane, solar projects currently in the pipeline will be grandfathered.

Regarding the Randall Lane project planned by SunRaise Investments, Eric Las of engineering firm Beals + Thomas said that based on comments from the town’s peer-review consultant, BETA Engineering, as well as comments from abutter-contracted G.A.F. Engineering and board members, slight modifications to the solar field are now planned and the total project is now reduced from a 7.7-megawatt array to a 7.6. Las also mentioned that a continued hearing with the Conservation Commission is planned for next week.

Las said that changes to regulations by the Natural Heritage & Endangered Species Program had to surrounding land and also brought the entire site inward another 5 feet from the 25-foot protected wetlands zone.

One possible solution to the required wetlands filling might be wetlands replication in surrounding areas to supplant the filled areas. Conservation Agent Laurell Farinon informed Las that he would need to present a detailed plan for any such proposed replication to satisfy commission concerns.

Facing significant challenges to reconcile the requirements of the Conservation Commission and Planning Board, Las requested a continuance of the public hearing until April 20.

The next Rochester Conservation Commission meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, April 6, at 7:00 pm.

Randall Lane Solar Array Tweaked
Mattapoisett Planning Board
By Mariou Newell

On April 5 at 7:00 pm, public hearings will be held during the Mattapoisett Planning Board meeting to vet changes to the existing Flood Hazard Bylaw and a new bylaw governing the installation of solar arrays. The Planning Board is preparing these two bylaws for the upcoming May Town Meeting.

Planning Board member Janice Robbins has been a prime mover in bringing the two bylaws to the full board for review and discussion.

Music and arts have been the hardest hit and longest shuttered factions of our society during this pandemic. The impacts are paralleled in our local school departments. Music students have been restricted from ultimately life affirming IRL (In Real Life) experiences where harmony and collaboration are key components. DESE guidelines were updated as of March 1, and for the first time in our 2020-2021 district calendar we will begin to work with the school department and roll out the changes to support our music students in compliance. The momentum has been building for these students, teachers and parents whose “sport” is music.

Friends of Old Rochester Music (FORM) is a nonprofit booster group benefitting music students in the JHS and HS, and raising money for student enrichment activities, travel expenses, instruments, competition expenses and scholarships for graduating seniors. This year we have had very limited practices, and no Winter or Spring Performances.

Support for Friends of Old Rochester Music (FORM) comes from local businesses raising awareness for their goods and services in our concert programs, donations, ticket sales, and pop up concessions and commemorative merchandise sales. These live performances are our life blood, and the IRL magic that happens when a musical group collaborates in front of a live audience. Live music inspires love, and compassion and connectedness. Personal, real time, contactless contact that exercises awareness of the nonphysical connectedness that we all share.

Graduating seniors will apply to FORM for it’s annual scholarships by May 3, 2021, giving us a window of opportunity to pledge for support. If you are a music lover, and you eagerly await the return of live performances, please remember that all of your favorite artists went to school once, some of them here at ORR, and we need to continue to inspire the next generation of artists to keep music in the fabric of their lives. delayed the finalization of the plan of record. He said those changes affect the required mitigation based on resource-area disturbance and are a factor in moving the array slightly and reducing the number of panels.

On the topic of staging the construction, Las said that was primarily the construction team’s responsibility, not his firm, but that he could prepare narrative directives for that process.

Robbins asked if a study of the existing entrance roadway, Randall Lane, had been completed to ensure its viability during construction and if the roadway meets directives from the Fire Department. Las confirmed that is the case and that offsite storage of materials for staging purposes would mean using smaller vehicles to ferry materials to the site.

Chairman Tom Tucker asserted that the use of the historic stone bridge, even by smaller vehicles, is off-limits, with Las confirming that the bridge is “off-limits.”

The project was extended until May 17; no continuation date for the public hearing was noted.

In other business, the board approved site plans submitted by Bill Madden of G.A.F. Engineering, representing applicant Stephen Randon, for property located off Randall Road named Cranberry Cove. A list of waivers for the single-lot subdivision was approved. Those waivers included elimination for the need of 4-foot utility strips along the roadway, no sidewalks, use of a hammerhead turnaround versus circular, and the development of a maintenance trust. Also decided was that the roadway would be paved versus packed gravel and that an operation and maintenance plan for Cranberry Cove be put in place for drain features and the roadway. Madden also said that language was added to the plan noting that the roadway would remain private into perpetuity.

The project was approved by a majority, with Tucker opposing it due to his opinion that the site consisted of a “pork-chop” layout.

The next meeting of the Mattapoisett Planning Board is scheduled for Monday, April 5, at 7:00 pm.
Project Hinges on Stream Designation
Marion Conservation Commission
By Mick Colageo

Intermittent versus perennial is apparently not a simple matter of observation when it comes time to vet a construction project near a stream.

In responding to applicant W. Dale Jones’ Abbreviated Notice of Resource Area Delineation (ANRAD) for the review and confirmation of the wetland resource area boundaries at the vacant lot on Register Road, the Marion Conservation Commission met on March 10 and took a deeper dive into an area uncommon to the commission’s routine cases.

“We’re a coastal town. We don’t deal with described bright soils in the upland and black or gray conditions in the wetland with those in the upland. He alluded to the “magical 50-percent point” where the topography dictates the planting of flags. Gray said he began the wetland delineation at the rear of the site and Jones’ property, comparing soil conditions in the wetland with those in the upland. He described bright soils in the upland and black or gray riverfront as much as some other towns might do,” said Shaun Walsh, chairman of the Conservation Commission. The wetland flags look reasonable to him, said, but added, “I’m struggling with the stream.”

Following a second site visit on March 6, consultant Bob Gray addressed the March 10 meeting in which he defined wetlands, referring to the typical red maple swamp and pit-and-mound topography. Gray alluded to the “magical 50-percent point” where the topography dictates the planting of flags.

Gray said he began the wetland delineation at the rear of the site and Jones’ property, comparing soil conditions in the wetland with those in the upland. He described bright soils in the upland and black or gray soils in the wetland before planting flags.

If the commission issues an Order of Resource Area Delineation (ORAD), it means the wetland area delineation on record is accurate, but there are ramifications to the classification of the stream.

“If it’s an intermittent stream, then there is no 200-foot riverfront area. If it is a perennial stream, then there is a 200-foot riverfront area associated with that,” said Walsh, noting that the conclusion can potentially impact what can be done on the site. “I want to make sure that we get it right; that’s where I’m coming from on that.”

Jones said he would not have bought it if he knew he was going to have a problem with the stream. He told the commission he bought the lot sometime around 1978; Walsh told him Marion did not have riverfront regulations at that time.

“I don’t want to issue something that Mass DEP might take a look at and decide to appeal to themselves,” said Walsh. “I always feel that, if you can get it right at the Conservation Commission level without an appeal to DEP, you’re going to get your decision sooner rather than later and at less expense rather than more expense.”

The regulations, Walsh summarized, say that if there is a river, there is a riverfront area, and a stream is a river when it’s a perennial stream (i.e., flowing throughout the year). If shown as a perennial stream on the most-recent USGS map, then it’s perennial and, therefore, a river with riverfront area. Conversely, if it is not thusly shown on the USGS map, it’s not a river. The caveat, said Walsh, is when the stream is shown as perennial, but there are documented field observations, and a DEP official can validate that the stream is, in fact, intermittent.

“And that’s where I am right now,” said Walsh. Gray, ConCom’s adviser on the matter, suggested that the commission issue an ORAD acknowledging the stream as perennial instead of measuring the application against the performance standards required by the commission for the lot in the current situation. An inspection by DEP personnel, he suggested, could take a month or more just to accomplish.

Despite being listed as intermittent, Gray said he is comfortable determining the stream to be perennial.
based on the USGS topography map.

Jones said he wants to settle the matter as soon as he can.

Per Gray’s suggestion, Walsh said ConCom would reach out to the state’s wetland circuit rider and continue the public hearing two weeks out to a 7:00 pm hearing on Wednesday, March 24.

Two Request for Determination of Applicability filings continued from February 18 were green-lighted without the need to file a notice of intent.

ConCom voted to issue a Negative 2 determination of applicability for applicant Fikile Portia Ndlovu’s construction of a single-family house in accordance with National Flood Insurance Standards within a FEMA flood zone AE16 at Wilson Road.

ConCom also voted to issue a Negative 3 determination of applicability for the shed that Michael Isabelle intends to build on the outer limits to the buffer zone to a coastal bank at 196 Point Road.

The next meeting of the Marion Conservation Commission is scheduled for Wednesday, March 24, at 7:00 pm.

application for the Cranberry Highway Development. The reopening of the discussion was sparked by changes to sign location and orientation on the site.

Phil Cordeiro of Allen and Major Inc. came before the Planning Board to explain the amended plans to the board members. According to Cordeiro, the plans for placing signs on the development have been in progress throughout the application phase and ultimately fall under Rochester Zoning Board of Appeals jurisdiction.

After meeting with the ZBA, Cordeiro identified changes in his plans that would need to be brought before the Planning Board for its records and maintained consistently among the plan sets. The changes to the plans were caused by ZBA requirements to identify the lines of sight surrounding the sign placements.

As the signs are positioned near the road, it is important that the positioning and orientation for signs do not impede the view of oncoming traffic. This point is particularly important for the signs positioned along Route 28. At those junctions, drivers will need a significant amount of vision to anticipate oncoming vehicles before turning.

Cordeiro went to the site and took pictures of the locations where the signs would be constructed. In addition, he shared images of the lines of sight with drawings of the signs superimposed so that board members could more accurately understand the impact that signs would have on limiting the view of oncoming traffic.

Due to Cordeiro’s design, the signs’ impact on the sightlines is limited by their spacing at least 11 feet away from the road at all points. This means that, even if the signs are substantial in size, drivers will still have the ability to see around them when turning out of the development.

The Planning Board was generally satisfied with the position and orientation of the signs, as Cordeiro effectively demonstrated that the signs would not cause any significant restriction to the sightlines. With that, the board informed Cordeiro that it would inform the ZBA that it is in favor of the updated changes to the position and orientation of the signs.
The next Rochester Planning Board meeting is scheduled for March 23 at 7:00 pm.

Tabor’s Campus Center Applauded
Marion Planning Board
By Mick Colageo

“Bravo!” exclaimed Planning Board member Chris Collings after seeing Tabor Academy’s latest plan to designate space for the eight parking spots necessary to achieve the minimum 58 required by the Town’s zoning bylaw for its proposed Campus Center at 85 Spring Street.

“Bravo to the applicant and their team for finding a way to meet the needs of the town of Marion,” said Collings. “[I] mirror that comment,” said board member Norm Hills.

Board member Eileen Marum said she is pleased that two spaces will be made available for electric vehicles, and member Joe Rocha said, “I like the fact that area is going to remain grass, be permeable.”

The reactions and unanimous vote by Planning Board members in their March 15 Zoom meeting brought to a conclusion what had been a contentious examination of Tabor’s proposed replacement of the Hayden Library.

“The building is going to be an improvement,” said Town Planner Gil Hilario, who called the Hayden Library building “antiquated.” Hilario said, “This will improve the village; the design is really good.”

“I think we collectively all felt that way about the building,” said Planning Board Vice Chairman Andrew Daniel, acting as chair for the case in the absence of Planning Board Chairman Will Saltonstall, who recused himself from all discussions and public hearings on the application as the project’s architect.

Daniel publicly apologized to Tabor Academy representatives for mishandling the March 1 public hearing that required a supermajority of five votes. Thinking the 4-1 vote on the parking matter was enough, he proceeded to move on to the next step addressing the vote for the overall project when he was informed the 4-1 vote was a denial, not approval. A second vote ended at 3-2, stalling the project’s approval.

Adding his thanks to Town Administrator Jay McGrail for walking him through the denial of the special permit sought, Daniel promised he would never make that mistake again.

On Monday night, the major site plan review was approved, and Tabor representative Tristan deBarros and acting Head of School Julie Salit thanked the board. Late in the meeting during the Public Outreach segment given to open comment, Daniel took a opportunity to speak as a citizen and used the platform to issue an impassioned rebuttal to a letter that Selectman John Waterman had submitted in the local press criticizing the Planning Board’s handling of the Campus Center public hearing.

Daniel stated that it is “not uncommon to meet multiple times.” He continued, “I don’t think we gave Tabor a hard time…. It was not a hardship and in no way was unfair treatment. To suggest otherwise was wrong.”

Another continued public hearing ended with great relief and happiness when the Planning Board approved an Approval Not Required (ANR) plan filed by attorney Robert Perry on behalf of the Sears Family Trust, Denise Allard, and the Estate of Joan E. Botelho, to split the lots at 61 and 63 Oakdale Avenue into separate properties. Saltonstall said, “We found the [Zoning Board of Appeals] decision compelling; it’s a quirky situation but one that makes sense.”

A second ANR plan was approved for 483 Point Road, where James and Elizabeth Kerns wish to expand their driveway area off Point Road.

Developer Matthew Zuker appeared before the Planning Board to introduce himself and discuss his proposed zoning change at 78 Wareham Road to Residence E multi-family housing. He was joined by attorney Patricia McArdle, who represented then-owner Henry DeJesus a year ago regarding the development of the same parcel.

A public hearing will be scheduled for April 5. “The big change is more single-family homes,” said Zuker, who lives in Falmouth and says there is a “real need in Marion for housing variety geared to 55 and over.” He envisions coastal cottages varying in size from 1,650 to 2,400 square feet that would start in price somewhere “in the mid-sixes.”

Zuker said he has the same team that DeJesus had, including engineer Dave Davignon. “Architecturally speaking, what we’re going for: traditional Marion in the front, and a more modern take on the back side,” he said of his “very preliminary” designs.

Zuker is requesting a zoning change from D to E to allow for more density but insists, with experience as a real-estate attorney having executed agreements before on use restriction, that he is “more than happy” to agree to spacing restrictions. He characterized his project as two and three-bedroom units, some single-family, and some townhouse-style out front on the 30 acres.

The continued public hearing for a special permit and major site plan review filed by Sherman Briggs and Hamblin Homes Inc., proposing a 28-unit residential development on Spring Street, was again continued to Monday, April 5, at 7:05 pm at the applicant’s request.

A public hearing to allow applicant Kristina Nelson to host a nutrition club with a reduction in parking at 3 Wells Road was discussed and continued to Monday, April 5, at 7:25 pm.

The Planning Board also discussed bylaw codification articles to be brought to the warrant for the Annual Town Meeting on May 10.

Hills presented the six different articles. The most controversial would allow the shutting-off of a resident’s water supply for delinquent water bills. Section 218 gives the town that option to try to obtain the payment; furthermore, unless a resident can prove a hardship case, it would require a homeowner to hook up to the town’s municipal water service.

“We have the highest water rates in the state and to shut them off is not our best avenue with the people in town,” said Daniel.

“It’s not saying we will; it’s saying we can,” said Hills.

“But you shouldn’t; it’s kind of crazy,” said Daniel.

The next meeting of the Marion Planning Board is scheduled for Monday, April 5, at 7:00 pm.
Delayed COVID-19 Vaccines Arrive

Marion Board of Health

By Jean Perry

Marion has received its delayed shipment of second doses of COVID-19 vaccine for its age 75+ residents who received their first dose through the town’s COVID-19 inoculation clinic back in February.

On March 2, the Marion Board of Health learned that it would have to reschedule its COVID-19 vaccine clinic slated for that following Thursday because a vaccine shortage in the state had delayed the delivery of the 100 doses. That vaccine clinic was rescheduled for Thursday of this week, March 18, still within the suggested 28 to 42-day timeframe the vaccine manufacturer recommends for the window to receive the second dose, said Public Health Nurse Lori Desmarais.

Unfortunately, she said, any tentative plans for hosting any future vaccination clinics for Tri-Town educators have been abandoned after Desmarais said the state has confirmed that it would maintain its focus on providing vaccine doses to mass-vaccination sites only and jettisoning its prior support for local vaccine distribution.

Desmarais reported that there are currently six active COVID-19 cases in Marion for a total of 381 since the onset of the pandemic one year ago.

Sippican School currently has four active cases with a total of 35 since schools reopened this past fall. There are presently three people in quarantine.

Old Rochester Regional Junior High School has one active case, none in quarantine, and has had 25 cases since the fall. There are no active cases currently over at ORR High School; five are in quarantine, and that school has had 78 confirmed cases total.

Tabor Academy continues to do well with its routine COVID-19 testing, said Desmarais, with the school continuing to screen students and staff that present with potential COVID-like symptoms.

Sippican Healthcare Center has gone 32 days since its last reported positive case.

Desmarais said she would be resuming her clinical hours from 1:00 pm to 4:00 pm every Wednesday at the Cushing Community Center for senior citizens beginning April 7. She said she had received multiple requests for blood pressure checks and, since the majority of those seniors have now been vaccinated, she can resume the weekly health clinics safely.

In other business, the board will be reviewing a draft set of regulations that control body art, such as tattoos and piercings. The interest comes as a new tattoo parlor sets up shop in Marion, which currently does not have its own set of adopted safety standards and regulations.

“I would enforce these things like I do for food-service establishments with annual inspections [and] do site inspections before opening,” said Health Agent Anna Wimmer.

Board of Health Chairman Dr. Edward Hoffer hopes to hold the public hearing as soon as the public hearing’s required legal posting can be accomplished.

Shortly before the meeting, Hoffer and Brown attended a joint meeting with Rochester Board of Health members Dale Barrows and David Souza to approve splitting the $27,910 annual amount for Karen Walega’s retirement as the former health director of the Marion-Rochester Regional Health District.

The health district dissolved last year and Walega remained in Rochester as its part-time health agent. The total includes $19,935 in pension, $1,674 for insurance, and $1,500 in bookkeeping costs. Hoffer said the town administrators from both towns recommend each town create a new budget line item for the assessment.

The next meeting of the Marion Board of Health will be held on Tuesday, April 6, at 4:00 pm.

Grant Will Fund Study of Transfer Station
Mattapoisett Board of Health
By Marilou Newell

On March 10, as the Mattapoisett Board of Health members held their monthly meeting chaired by Carmelo Nicolosi and attended by Russell Bailey and Ken Dawicki, Health Agent Kayla Davis discussed an upcoming study of the transfer station.

Town Administrator Mike Lorenzo recently announced that he had applied for two grants that were subsequently awarded from the Collins Center for Public Management UMass Boston. One grant will be used to study improvement opportunities at the financially strapped Transfer Station Enterprise Fund. The grant for the transfer station study is $22,000.

Davis noted that, although the board was not required to accept the grant to fund the operational study of the transfer station, it was her belief it was for the good of the department. “[The grant] will be an operational and organizational review to assess opportunities for improvements.”

Though the matter did not come to a vote, the board responded favorably, agreeing that the study is worthwhile. The other grant, not in the board’s purview, is for a study of school enrollment and consolidation, also under the Community Compact Program.

Lorenzo had shared during several meetings with the Finance Committee the need to review the enterprise’s operation considering that it should be self-supporting but required a subsidy from the municipal coffers. Lorenzo has earmarked $50,000 in the FY22 budget for the subsidy.

Davis said that presently the transfer station is fully staffed and that her office has been receiving compliments regarding the customer service that permit holders are now receiving. She said that stickers containing UPC codes could capture usage data, including use by commercial entities. When asked how the operation’s receipts have been recently, Davis said that business was slow but should be picking up soon. She also confirmed that funds paid by users have been reported weekly with daily deposits at the Town Hall. The transfer station is open year-round Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday from 8:00 am to 2:45 pm, she said.

Nicolosi said the enterprise fund’s biggest expense is the cost of recycling, saying that litigation with ABC Disposal is ongoing. The referenced legal issues concern the disposal company’s attempt to pass along costs associated with the disposal versus recycling the material. ABC could not sell recycled materials from the town because the condition was too dirty for their trading partners, Nicolosi said in a follow-up. During the meeting, Nicolosi said of ABC, “It was circumstances beyond their control – costs shot up.”

Earlier in the meeting, the board met briefly with Public Health Nurse Emily Field, who has confirmed another 100 vaccinations will be made available to senior citizens living at Village Court.

In her report on the latest information on vaccine distribution, Field stated that a clinic was taking place that very day for both first and second-dose vaccinations. Field said homebound residents wishing to receive the vaccine would be contacted and scheduled by the end of March. She also confirmed that senior-housing residents would also receive vaccines. But with supplies low, Field said she had not received state approval to vaccinate educators working in the community. When asked, she also confirmed that the state was more inclined to supply medication to state-run sites versus local venues.

The next meeting of the Mattapoisett Board of Health is scheduled for Wednesday, April 14, at 10:00 am.

MRC to Reconsider Commercial Moorings
Marion Marine Resources Commission
By Jean Perry

The Marion Marine Resources Commission’s next project is to review the existing moratorium on new commercial moorings and started the process on March 16 after discussing the moratorium’s history, hearing from Marion marine businesses, and ultimately forming a three-member subcommittee to study the topic comprehensively and present its findings to the commission for a recommendation.

Harbormaster Isaac Perry said he has received inquiries about the availability of commercial moorings in Marion waters and asked the commission to consider where it stands on the issue. Perry’s concern is for the “serious ramifications” to marine-based businesses affected by approval or denial of a commercial mooring transfer request.

MRC Chairman Vincent Malkoski said the moratorium was established after the early “wild, wild, west” days of harbor management in Marion when commercial moorings were deployed in high numbers, moved around, and rented out. The moratorium resulted once harbor management was “straightened out to bring everything in line,” said Malkowski.

Current regulations on the transfer of commercial moorings restrict transfers to marine-based businesses only, with no additional moorings permitted. Any commercial mooring transfer, other than that to an immediate family member, is converted to a recreational mooring. Recent applications for transfer requests, business’ renewed interest in adding commercial moorings, and long mooring waiting lists are driving the proverbial bus toward MRC consideration.

According to Perry, Marion has roughly 1,300 moorings in its waters, with just under 280 of those classified as commercial. Another 40 or so are classified as commercial, such as those moorings held by the Beverly Yacht Club, Tabor Academy, and the Kittansett Club.

The Kittansett Club has recently expressed a renewed interest in acquiring more commercial moorings, Perry said, and several Marion marine businesses are also exploring the possibility.

The waiting list for moorings in the inner harbor is as long as a 25-year wait, with other areas between one and three years or less time for those waiting lists.

MRC member Scott Cowell posed the question: How many boats do we want in our harbor? “Do we want to expand … or keep a moratorium on everything?”

Malkowski said he knows of no one who would claim that the inner harbor isn’t already full, and the MRC will look at the inner harbor as a part of the whole conversation. “But, honestly, I have a hard time seeing how we can do any expansion in the inner harbor,” said Malkoski. Moorings could be deployed to areas like Aucoot Cove, he suggested. Changes could entail lifting the moratorium while keeping with density limits in certain areas, reallocating existing vacant moorings, and creating a policy on how moorings would be assigned.

“Can we look purely at commercial moorings without looking at private moorings also?” asked MRC member Peter Borsari. Perhaps, said Malkoski, but with the issue of density, it has to be carefully studied. Still, it’s the “should or shouldn’t” question that will determine the results.

The commission allowed the representatives from three different Marion-based marine businesses to speak about what they hope to achieve in the long run, beginning with Dan Crete from Saltworks Marine. Crete said he recently bought 600 feet of waterfront in Hammett’s Cove, where he would like to add commercial moorings for logistical purposes and, perhaps, to rent to clients.

“It’s really difficult to have a boatyard in town and not very many places to keep boats that are in, even just in transition, coming in for haul-out,” said Crete. “It’s really a lot of juggling and keeping a lot of plates in the air …” He said sometimes the boats he services contribute to congestion at the town docks. “It would be hugely helpful,” he said, to have moorings for boats his company boards, and “tremendous” to have a handful of spaces to rent to existing customers. Two other boatyards have “a lot more than a handful” of such moorings, he said. “It would be nice to have a small dog in the fight, at least. … Right now, we don’t have much.”

Shawn Patten from A&J Boat Corporation said he, like Crete, is looking for convenience for boat drop-offs, pick-ups, and similar transient situations. “Often we can’t complete a job in time,” he said, with the short boating season and tides and other factors affecting each day. Rentals would also be a plus, he said. “We don’t have any revenue generating on the water,” said Patten. The marine industry is expensive, he added, “and any little income that you can use to subsidize will certainly help the businesses and grow the businesses in town.”

Gregg Nourjian from the Kittansett Club said they talked about installing a pier with a landing for years to accommodate transient guests who want to come play golf, eat, or spend the night. He would be looking for about a dozen moorings in the outer harbor northeast of the point.

The MRC’s subcommittee has its homework ahead of it, starting with looking to other communities on their own commercial-moorings policies and regulations. Whatever new process Marion adopts, if any, must be fair and equally mindful of the environment, said Malkoski.

“[The MRC] should do what we can to help existing businesses in town thrive,” said MRC member Toby Burr, who also owns Burr Brothers Boats. “Marion has a problem. It doesn’t have enough businesses … so the few that we have we should help out to the extent possible.”

Malkoski reminded everyone that no regulations would move forward before a public hearing and vote by the Board of Selectmen.

Cowell said this should be a collaborative effort between the MRC, the Harbormaster Department, residents, and businesses to determine “what’s best for everybody and what makes the most sense for the waters.”

“That is always our intent,” said Malkoski. “Even

Donald R. LaBrode, 66, of Acushnet passed away at home on March 14, 2021 surrounded by his loving family. He is survived by his wife Donna (Mayer) LaBrode. Last year they celebrated their 47th year of tireless and dedicated love. Donald was born on January 7, 1955 in New Bedford to the late Myles Louis LaBrode and the late Deolinda (Amaral) LaBrode. He was a resident of Acushnet for his entire life residing in the family home originally built by his grandparents. Donald’s source of ceaseless joy was his family, which consists of three children, Julie Bosworth along with her husband Thomas of Dartmouth, Eric LaBrode along with his wife Rebecca of Westport, and Elizabeth Leifheit along with her husband Gareth of Avon, MA. As “Puppa”, he adored his six grandchildren: Logan and Hadley Bosworth, Taylor and Eleanor LaBrode, and Emon and Alder Leifheit. Donald was the youngest of four siblings and is survived by his sister Margaret (LaBrode) Rapoza along with her husband John of Sarasota, FL, his brother Myles LaBrode along with his wife Elizabeth of Taunton, MA, and his brother Paul LaBrode along with his wife Claire of Leland, NC as well as his brother-in-law Donald Mayer and with his wife Janet of Mattapoisett.

Donald was an avid sailor, capturing his beloved Dove and later Honeybee, out of Padanaram harbor on the waters of Buzzard’s Bay and beyond. The friendships he made through boating were true and enduring. Donald was a long-standing member of the New Bedford Yacht Club. Brodie, as he was affectionately known, worked as a Pepperidge Farm distributor for forty-one years until his retirement in 2017. He traded driving the bread truck for long rides in his 1967 Mercedes coupe. Donald had a knack for making people feel welcome and comfortable; that was never more true than on Sundays by the pool when family and friends would gather for fantastic food, conversation, and music. He always enjoyed relaxing with a book and looked forward to a new selection arriving from his cousin Michael.

His life will be celebrated this summer by family and friends in true Donald fashion under a tent in the field he so proudly tended at 188.

when we tell people ‘no,’ … we’re truly trying to do what’s best for the town.”

Marion waters is a “finite resource,” said Malkoski. “You can only do so many things in one area. … We have to make choices.” He continued, “We’re trying to re-divide the pieces of our finite pie and see what we can squeeze out of it.”

In other business, Perry said the department has issued 2021 invoices for inspections and will be working to “clean-up” the handful of aged and overdue inspections. He is also working to reconcile any past overdue excise taxes, something Perry said is a “renewed push” across several town departments. Mooring permit bills have also been issued recently.

The commission is expected to review a final draft of the updated aquaculture regulations before forwarding it to the Board of Selectmen for a public hearing and vote.

The next meeting of the Marion Marine Resources Commission will be held on Monday, April 19, at 7:00 pm.

An Unusual Kickoff to Spring: Football
Sports Roundup
By Nick Friar

Football is finally back in the Tri-Town area with the MIAA’s Fall II season underway. Old Rochester Regional and Old Colony Regional Vocational Technical High School have not begun regular-season games just yet, but both teams are back to work and have each scrimmaged in preparation for their abbreviated campaigns.

However, just because the two football programs are back to work does not mean the pandemic hasn’t forced coaches and players to make some adjustments.

“I think everybody is in the same boat. We only have an hour and a half to practice, so that’s cut down significantly from what we usually have,” ORR Head Coach Bryce Guilbeault said. “But we’re kind of just adapting on the fly and going with it and trying to get in as much stuff as we can. I think it’s very vital for the underclassmen — the sophomores, the juniors, and even the freshmen.

“For them, they get a good advantage. They’re playing football now, we’ll end in May, and two and a half months later, we’re back out there. So this is a great opportunity for these guys to get some experience and (for us to) really coach those guys up and utilize practice time, so come August, we’re ready to go.”

Both ORR and Old Colony have young teams this season, so with the preoccupation on the present, there is also a focus on the future. While the underclassmen can use Fall II as a season of preparation for the fall, seniors have a unique opportunity to grow their game while closing out their high school playing careers.

“Every day, we’re talking about COVID protocols and telling guys they can’t be hanging out in group settings,” Guilbeault said. “I say it every day, but the seniors also talk about it every day and say, ‘Guys, go home. Don’t go to your buddy’s house.’ That’s great to hear because kids are going to listen to their teammates more than they’re going to listen to me.

“They know the reality that this isn’t baseball or basketball where we can squeeze three games in a week. If we miss a game, we’re probably not making it up. I think they’re approaching it like they have an opportunity to get in seven games, and they want to get in every game they can. It’s really nice to see those guys step up in a leadership role.”

Much like the winter season, schools will not play outside their respective conferences throughout the regular season. For Old Colony, one odd change has been the shift in the Cougar Cup, a game historically held last on the program’s slate, that has been bumped up to the season opener.

“It’s weird,” Old Colony head coach Brandon Mendez said. “I was actually talking to the Tri-County coach, and he was like, ‘I just want to get off the ground and get one game in.’ I’m glad we’re starting off against them because we know it’ll be a good game and adversarial. At the end of the day, we’re all just happy to get on the field and let the kids get a chance to compete.”

The Cougars return four seniors: tailback-safety Thomas Stanton, fullback/linebacker Ryan McGuiggan, quarterback/defensive end Austin Mendes, and wide receiver/outside linebacker Jared Boren. Some other names from Old Colony’s roster to pay attention to throughout the season include junior guard/linebacker Ray Thibeault, junior lineman Joe Rubini, sophomore lineman Hunter Morrell, sophomore quarterback Mat McGuigan, freshman center Ryan Letendre, and freshman wide receiver Shawn Markham. Old Colony starts regular season play with a 7:00 pm kickoff on Friday, March 19, at New Bedford.

Quarterback Ryon Thomas, wide receiver Dylon Thomas, wide receiver/safety Tommy Durocher, tight end/linebacker Ryan Quinlan, offensive lineman Jared Achorn, and offensive lineman Mitch Higgins headline Old Rochester’s roster as the senior group. The Bulldogs host Dighton-Rehoboth on Saturday, March 27.

Alexa McLeod of Marion, Jake Yeomans of Marion, and Julia Cabral of Mattapoisett have been named to the 2020 Fall Dean’s List at the University of Connecticut.

Allison Paim of Marion, Felicia Aguiar of Mattapoisett, and Lilah Gendreau of Mattapoisett were named to the 2020 fall semester Dean’s List at Simmons University in Boston. To qualify for dean’s list status, undergraduate students must obtain a grade point average of 3.5 or higher, based on 12 or more credit hours of work in classes using the letter grade system.

Oliver Russell of Mattapoisett was named to the Dean’s List at Bates College for the fall semester ending in December 2020. This is a distinction earned by students whose grade point average is 3.88 or higher. Russell, the son of Gregory D. Russell and Jennifer D. Russell, is a 2017 graduate of Falmouth Academy. Anthony DeCosta was well known in Mattapoisett as a painter and the co-author of a book about the first Portuguese residents in the town. Born in 1892, he was a lifelong resident, except for the years he drove an ambulance during World War I. In his later years, he painted pictures of Mattapoisett, including the Ned’s Point Lighthouse, the whaling ship The Wanderer, and of New Bedford’s streets during the whaling years. DeCosta’s granddaughter, Lorene Sweeney remembers, “When I was in high school, he and my grandmother stopped by our house one day with wonderful gifts for me, his easel and painting materials. Because of cataracts, he could no longer paint. He wanted to encourage me in painting my first picture. I recall vividly the hugs and tears. Now, I think of him every time I paint at his easel.” Lorene’s mother, now 90, is one of the last of her grandfather’s children, one of which was longtime Mattapoisett Selectman John DeCosta, whose son John DeCosta now serves in the same role. When her mother moved out of her house, she sent her father’s painting to Lorene to donate it to the Mattapoisett Museum, which agreed to accept it. On March 12, she delivered her grandfather’s painting of the old Mattapoisett wharf to the museum. Photo courtesy Lorene Sweeney

Mattapoisett is special, with its seashores, forests, and community at large. We have a large number of citizens in their senior years. The Council in Aging is exceptional with offering activities and assistance with health care issues. If you need them, they are there. Mattapoisett has 105 people over 90 years of age right now. They depend on us as we depended on them in the past. We have exceptional police and fire departments and we all depend on them. Whether it is for paramedics or help getting up from a frightening fall, they respond with patience and kindness while preserving the dignity of the person at that time of need. Too often the officers’ names are not known. There is a reassurance program in town where the senior calls into the business line of the police department by 10:00 am each morning, and if not, the police will call them to check on their safety. Applications for this service are available at the COA.

The Friends of Mattapoisett COA want to thank our first responders. We know who you are and appreciate what you do to help all of us keep our special generation as safe as possible.

Death Bringer

In the realm of the spaghetti western, there are the Sergio Leone films and then there’s everything else. The head of the class of “everything else” is generally agreed to be Sergio Corbucci’s Django, which turns 55 on April 6. Back in 1978, before he was a film director himself, Alex Cox wrote a 249-page book on the subgenre he loved, called 10,000 Ways to Die. (Cox would return to the manuscript, spruce it up, and publish it in 2008.) About Django he said, “Corbucci’s masterpiece — a cruel morality fable of monsters at war with each other and with the world .... Django is the Italian Western par excellence.”

You get past the mildly goofy theme song (“Django, have you never loved again?”), this is a dark, bitter, politically aware shot of whiskey in which greed and hatred crush love under their muddy bootheels.

Django (Franco Nero) famously walks — not rides — into town, dragging a coffin behind him. Visually, he’s the death-bringer, a reminder that the old ways are about to pass. This town, which seems to be populated only by a decrepit bar owner and some whores, is a flashpoint of conflict between nearby Mexican banditos and southern racist thugs led by Major Jackson (Eduardo Fajardo, who has the same fleshy, self-satisfied loathsomeness as Danny Huston in some of his heavy roles). Django brings along Maria (Loredana Nusciak), whom he’d earlier seen whipped by the Mexicans and then almost burned on a cross by the racists. Maria falls in love with Django, but he cannot allow himself to love anyone: his beloved was killed when he was “far away...way too far away.”

Played with iconic calm by Nero, Django doesn’t really trust anyone. The Mexicans are scum. The racists are worse scum. The world turns everyone into scum or whores. The best thing a man like Django can do is tentatively ally himself with the lesser of two bands of scum — if he has to, or if it would benefit him. Django is an inhumanly fast shot, and once he breaks out what’s in his coffin, he turns into a true rapid-fire Grim Reaper. The Mexicans want a revolution, and are trying to scare up enough cash to get weapons to wage some serious war. At least they have a better justification for killing than simple mad-dog hatred of dusky skin. Early on, we see Major Jackson forcing one Mexican after another to run, and then picking them off with his rifle, for sport. After one victim falls, his grief-stricken children run to him. It was perhaps only the censorious strictures of the time that discouraged Corbucci from showing Major Jackson blowing the children away, too. “Nits make lice,” said Col. John Milton Chivington, who led the notorious 1864 Sand Creek Massacre on a village of Cheyenne Indians and defended his troops’ slaughter of babies. Chivington’s long shadow darkens Django.

The movie can be seen as a sidewise Yojimbo riff, Leone’s A Fistful of Dollars being the first (and less politically fraught). Django, though, isn’t just out for money, and he doesn’t play the two warring factions against each other. His motive is revenge for his lost beloved. This makes the movie a little more simplistic than it has to be. If the Mexicans, not Major Jackson, were responsible for Django’s loss, would he then stand with the racist pigs? Or would he strategize more like Mifune and Eastwood? We don’t know. We don’t know much about Django other than that he still nurses his loss, he’s a thief and killer, and he has some positive history with the Mexicans’ leader, Gen. Hugo Rodriguez (José Bódalo). But as the story plays out, we see that Django is trying to escape his past and buy himself a new life. He puts too much stock in gold as his ticket out. He can’t have a new life while employing the skills of his old life.

Much has been made of the film’s violence, though by today’s standards it may strike some as tame. Back in 1966, the body count weighed in as pretty high, and the ear-cutting scene is still fairly gruesome. This was Corbucci’s way of saying that there was no honor possible in the Old West, just self-preservation and ignobly butchered corpses. “It is intensely cruel, anti-clerical, polyglot, and infested with religious symbolism,” wrote Alex Cox. There was no God but the white God, and He apparently said it was A-OK to murder people who looked different. The monuments to this absent God are everywhere in the film, in this world where love is a mockery and God is death. Even the climate is grotesque: mud and infertile dust, and bitter cold — even indoors, we can see the steam of people’s breath.

It’s a simple story, but it sticks with you (even the mournful theme song, despite its overexplicit lyrics, will become an earworm for the next few days) because of what it says about humanity shackled by the structures it built: government, religion, commerce. We’re all whores, and we’ll all end up in a graveyard, our hands mangled, our pain unrelieved by revenge.
an interesting story. It reads: “In memory of Mrs. Sarah Howfe (Howse) Relict (widow) of Lieut. Jeremiah Howfe, who died May 5th, 1791, in her 88th year. N.B (note well), Mr. Jeremiah Howfe was killed by Indians in May 1747 aged 45.”

Little is known about this family other than a church record noting the marriage of a daughter, Sarah, to Earl Clap in 1761. Clap had been a prominent family in Rochester from very early on. There was also a baptism listed for Sarah, age 30, in April 1770, and another in June 1770 for five Clap children and Sarah’s mother, Sarah Howse, a widow near 70 years old.

As for Jeremiah, only his death date is known for sure. By this time in history, only a few Native Americans remained in the area, so it is unprovable that Jeremiah was killed here, or there would have been a notation somewhere in Rochester’s history. This is where the Forgotten War comes in.

As a Lieutenant, he must have been in a militia at some point in time. Between 1689 and 1763, four wars were fought between the British and the French, with Indians fighting on both sides. The first three were King William’s War, Queen Anne’s War, and King George’s War. The fourth, the French & Indian War, is the one we today know and remember.

The British ordered towns in Massachusetts to supply men to fight in the wars as subjects of the crown. Around 1744-45, Massachusetts raised a force of some 3,300 men, many from this area. These recruits, mostly farmers and fishermen, sailed from Boston with the very inexperienced but rich Boston merchant William Pepperell in charge. The intent was for these troops to take the garrison of Louisburg on Cape Breton Island. Having no idea of how to carry out a siege, ammunition and provisions were gone in three weeks.

Disease was everywhere. Thankfully, the French garrison was poorly manned. King George did send help, and finally, the town and fort were demolished. It took 9,000 cannonballs, 600 bombs, and a great deal of courage to accomplish this deed. When departing, Pepperell left 2,500 men to hold the fort for the British. Sickness that winter took the lives of 900 men. By spring, those left were hospitalized. Three regiments of British troops were sent to help. Fighting continued for two more years. By October 1748, when it was finally over, the British signed over the fort, which was so hard fought for, back to the French.

Was Jeremiah on Cape Breton and at Louisburg or elsewhere fighting during this time? Was he one of those left behind to fight for two more years? We only know that his death in 1747 fits the timeline. What we know for sure is that he had a wife and children in Rochester who were left alone when he was “killed by Indians.”

Sippican Woman's Club
Remember the Oar and Paddle Auction that the Sippican Woman’s Club had planned to hold last summer? These artistically painted oars or paddles done by local artists and art students were to be auctioned off in August. …Then came COVID-19.
Well, the auction is now in the planning stages to be held this August in a safe environment. If we gave you an oar or paddle last year, please consider finishing it! If you’d like an oar or paddle to paint or decorate to be auctioned off to benefit our Scholarship Fund, email us at SWC.Marion@gmail.com.

Mattapoisett Recreation
Mattapoisett Recreation has many Spring 2021 programs to offer, and online registration is open. Starting the week of April 26, MATTREC is offering Youth and Adult Pickleball Lessons, Track Club, Kid Fit, Sport Fit, Running Club, Jewelry Making, and Tennis Lessons.
All programs start at or after 3:30 pm and are open to in-school or at-home students. COVID-19 protocols will be followed. For information on all programs, visit our website at www.mattrec.net. Plans for Summer 2021 are underway, and registration for our

March Musical Mosaic
The Tri-County Symphonic Band, under the direction of Philip Sanborn, will present a program titled “March Musical Mosaic” on Sunday, March 21, at 3:00 pm. The concert will be a virtual live-stream, free of charge event and can be viewed on ORC-TV (Comcast: Channel 9 or Verizon: Channel 36) or live-streamed on the Tri-County Symphonic Band YouTube channel tricountysymphonicband.org. “March Musical Mosaic” features a number of band members and their friends in special picture-in-picture videos. From clarinet ensembles this concert spans a wide array of offerings that is certain to delight. Please visit: tricountysymphonicband.org for more detailed information.

Cushing Cemetery
On April 1, we will be starting our cleanup of the cemetery and we need your help. It would be a big help if you removed the old Christmas decorations, dead flowers, old Halloween decorations, and worn and faded plastic flowers. All biodegradable materials can go into the trailer; all other materials can go into the trash cans.
The volunteers have been picking up sticks and blowdowns all winter long, and have been working on other projects to make the cemetery more pleasant to the eye. So, any help you give us would be helpful.
Please, no dogs are allowed in the cemetery and,
please, no doggy bags in the trash.

SALOME’S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Consider moving beyond the usual methods to find a more creative means of handling a difficult on-the-job situation. Avoid confrontation and, instead, aim for cooperation.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Seasonal change creates a new look for the outdoors. It also inspires Taureans to redo their own environments, and this is a good week to start redoing both your home and workplace. Enjoy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A misunderstanding needs to be straightened out so the wrong impression isn’t allowed to stand. If necessary, offer to support the use of a third party to act as an impartial arbitrator.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A career change offering what you want in money and responsibilities could involve moving to a new location. Discuss this with family members before making a decision.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Feeling miffed over how you believe you were treated is understandable. But before you decide to “set things straight,” make sure the whole thing wasn’t just a misinterpretation of the facts.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Showing you care makes it easier to build trust and gain an advantage in handling a delicate situation. What you learn from this experience also will help you understand yourself better.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Planning for the future is fine, especially if you include the roles that family members may be asked to play. Don’t be surprised if some hidden emotions are revealed in the process.

SCORPIUS (October 23 to November 21) Making choices highlights much of the week, and you have a head start here, thanks to your ability to grasp the facts of a situation and interpret them in a clear-cut manner.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Carrying a torch can be a two-way situation: It can either keep you tied to the past or help light your way to the future. The choice, as always, has to be yours.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your watchwords this week are: “Focus.” Don’t let yourself be distracted from what you set out to do. There’ll be time later to look over other possibilities.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A workplace opportunity might require changes you’re not keen on making. Discuss the plusses and minuses with someone familiar with the situation before you make a decision.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Love and romance are strong in your aspect this week. If you’ve already met the right person, expect your relationship to grow. And if you’re still looking, odds are you’ll soon be finding it.

BORN THIS WEEK: You approach life in a wise and measured manner, which gives you an edge in many areas.

A Livestream Music Event

The Marion Art Center presents Sundog Organ Trio as a Livestream Music Event in partnership with ORCTV on Sunday, March 21, at 4:00 pm. Sundog Organ Trio formed in the fall of 2018. The three musicians “have a collective love for improvisation, and tight grooves.” The group features Brian Sances on guitar/vocals, Colin Bradley on organ, and Dylan Vaughn on drums. The band’s multi-styled sound might be considered rock’n roll-psychedelic-fusion, with sounds reminiscent of bands like Pink Floyd or blues and rock groups. Donations to this free event will directly support music at the MAC and will be split 50/50 between the MAC and performing artists. Find out more at marionartcenter.org/music.

South Coast Families Make Music Together

For over 50 years, the Tri-County Symphonic Band has drawn large and enthusiastic crowds of those who love good music. With a repertoire that includes traditional and contemporary classical music as well as jazz, Broadway, and popular selections, the band has developed great audience excitement throughout the South Coast area. In addition to many concerts in Tabor Academy’s Performing Arts Center in Marion, the band gives concerts in Dartmouth and has recently appeared on the concert stage at Falmouth Academy. Fueling much of this music making are a number of South Coast families. Fathers and sons, brothers, fathers and daughters, and husbands and wives have all appeared with the band.

With regard to family contributions, the family of Toby Monte, trumpet first chair, stands out. Toby’s great-grandfather, Antonio Pacheco Silva, arrived in America in 1912 and a year later launched a legacy by starting the Acoreana Band (now called the Banda Filarmónica Santa Cecilia). Six of Antonio’s sons played in the band while granddaughter Irene Silva Monte, Toby Monte’s mother, has been the driving force behind the legacy. A gifted pianist and soprano, Irene was the inspiration for her son’s musical achievements. Irene provided the music for services at Santo Christo Church in Fall River for 60 years. In addition to her piano playing and singing, Irene made sure that the church had an organist by urging Toby to learn to play the organ along with his interests in the trumpet.

Toby Monte began playing with the Tri-County

Symphonic Band in the 1970s. At various times, Toby’s children have also played with the Tri-County Symphonic Band. Toby Monte, Jr. is a superb euphonium player and his twin brother, Daniel, is an excellent percussionist. David Monte is an accomplished French horn player. Toby’s brother, Michael, has played with the band as a bass clarinetist as well as an E-flat clarinetist. David Monte’s fiancé, Angela Reed, has played with the band on tuba.

The musical heritage started by Toby Monte’s great-grandfather continues in other ways. Both of Michael Monte’s children share their musical talents. Michael, Jr. is a percussionist and daughter, Meghan, is a violinist. Toby Monte conducts the Marion Concert Band, is a music professor at University of Massachusetts, Dartmouth and finds the time to play organ and direct the choir at St. John of God Church in Somerset. He has also shared his talents for conducting and teaching with the Southeastern Massachusetts Youth Orchestras. Both Toby and Michael have been members of the Cape Cod Symphony Orchestra. Toby Monte continues to be proud of the musical legacy that began with his great-grandfather back in 1912 and he vows to continue it in many ways through playing, teaching, conducting, and directing musical organizations of various kinds. He also encourages his offspring to carry on the legacy into the future with even more musical Montes. While another legacy as large as the Montes’ is unlikely, the families of the Tri-County Symphonic Band will always be a significant part of the band’s success.

Toby Monte will be performing all of the parts of a seven-trumpet arrangement of “The Star-Spangled Banner” in a virtual format, on the upcoming Tri-County Symphonic Band concert “March Musical Mosaic - A Virtual Offering.” The concert will be aired at 3:00 pm on Sunday, March 21. NBSO Presents “Celebrating Black Culture”

The NBSO is back with another fantastic virtual concert! Join us on March 20 from the comfort of your own home as we safely place 23 musicians, Music Director Yaniv Dinur, and guest pianist Joseph Joubert on stage at The Z for a virtual performance featuring four generations of leading African American composers. The concert also features a collaboration with the New Bedford Historical Society, who will share their extensive resources on the Nathan and Polly Johnson House and Frederick Douglass’ time in New Bedford.

The orchestra opens with Jessie Montgomery’s Banner, a brilliant rendition of the national anthem interwoven with Lift Every Voice and Sing – often called the Black national anthem. Florence Price’s Andante Cantabile is derived from the second movement of her string quartet and will be performed here in a version for string orchestra. Next up is Coleridge-Taylor Perkinson’s Grass, an anti-war work for piano, strings, and percussion, featuring guest soloist Joseph Joubert. The piece is based on a poem by Carl Sandburg and refers to the grass growing on the tombs of soldiers. Mr. Joubert has accumulated a long list of accolades as an arranger, orchestrator, Broadway conductor, and music director, and as a pianist has received critical acclaim for his “uncommon tonal beauty.” Mr. Joubert was the first to record this piece. The finale brings Adolphus Hailstork’s Sonata da Chiesa (Church Sonata), a tribute to Baroque music and the composer’s fascination with cathedrals. It moves between exalting rhythms and reflective prayers, symbolizing the different stages of a religious service as well as of human life.

To learn more about the concert music and the musicians, watch our “Three To Get Ready” video that will be posted the week of the concert on www.nbsymphony.org under the Events/Online Concerts tab.

One listener from a past virtual concert expressed a popular sentiment this way: “The multiple cameras and clever editing with the views of individual musicians, with the stark background of the Zeiterion stage, made us feel like we were right at the concert.” Are virtual concerts the next best thing to being there, or better than being there? Watch and decide!

Tickets are just $20 per household and are available at Zeiterion.org. Ticket purchasers will receive a link on 3/20 for access via YouTube.com. The concert will be available for viewing March 20 – April 19.

The NBSO is a professional orchestra that annually presents a concert series of classical and pops music as well as an outstanding chamber music series. In addition, the NBSO’s innovative and nationally recognized educational programs reach thousands of students each year in local schools and through open access online. The NBSO is dedicated to building a community of music in the South Coast. Visit nbsymphony.org today!

The New Bedford Historical Society seeks to establish a solid base of research and programs that will make the contributions of people of color a part of the life and history of the region as well as a part of the permanent public record. In the process, the history of the region in general will become fuller, deeper, and richer for everyone. Learn more at nbsymphony.org.

ORCTV Video Production Scholarship

Each year, Old Rochester Community Television awards one graduating senior from our Old Rochester Regional High School video production program its “Outstanding Student Award.” The scholarship is meant to assist the student as they move on to study video production or film upon entering college.

During the summer of 2020, ORCTV’s first president, Ken Souza, passed away suddenly. In addition to having been the station president, Ken was also an educator who taught video production at Bristol Community College. With this in mind, ORCTV decided to honor Ken by naming its annual scholarship the “Kenneth J. Souza Memorial Award for Outstanding Video Production.”

When ORCTV informed Ken’s wife, Margie Souza, of its intentions to name the award in honor of her husband, Mrs. Souza asked if it would be possible to create a process where those who wished to remember Ken could contribute towards the funding of the award.

ORCTV agreed this would be a great way for those in the community to remember Ken and his contributions to the Tri-Town. If you would like to contribute to the Ken Souza Scholarship fund, please send...

Sippican Woman's Club Scholarship
Since 1947, the Sippican Woman’s Club has awarded scholarships to Marion students. The scholarships are usually funded by proceeds from the Holiday House Tour but this year, due to the pandemic, it was funded by donations from various individuals.

Eligibility: Any Marion resident who is currently a high school senior and will attend an accredited college or university to pursue a bachelor’s degree in the coming year.

Criteria: Scholarships are awarded on the basis of academic achievement, participation in extracurricular activities, and community service.

Special Scholarships: The Lu Chevrier Scholarship is awarded to a high school senior with a particularly outstanding record of community service. The Alice Ryder Book Award is presented to the highest-ranking English student in the middle school graduating class.

This year’s application forms can be downloaded in Adobe pdf or MSWord format from the website: sippicanwomansclub.org/scholarships. High school seniors must use APP-2021. Undergraduates applying for continuing support must use Re-APP-2021 and must have received a prior award.

Mattapoisett Congregational Church
Mattapoisett Congregational Church, UCC, continues to post weekly worship services on its website and broadcast services through ORCTV.

All are invited to view the services at mattapoisettcongregationalchurch.org, under the “videos” pull-down menu. There you will find recorded services that include scripture, music, prayer, and a brief reflection. A new service is broadcast on ORCTV at 8:00 am on Sunday morning and then rebroadcast at 11:00 am on Wednesday.

Govern ment guidelines and space restrictions for safe gathering prompted church leaders to discontinue in-person worship when the pandemic began. Until late autumn, the church held in-person services outdoors. Now, all services are back online. Please visit the church’s website for all the latest information and find us on Facebook.

SLT Osprey Marsh Accessible Boardwalk Reservation System
Sippican Lands Trust now offers specific reservation slots to our 1,800-foot long Osprey Marsh accessible boardwalk for visitors at high-risk or otherwise unable to social distance safely. Visitors needing a one-hour time slot can set up at an appointment at sippicanlandstrust.setmore.com for a visit to the Osprey Marsh accessible boardwalk on Sundays from 3:00 pm – 4:00 pm, Mondays from 10:00 am – 11:00 am, Tuesdays from 3:30 pm – 4:30 pm, or Wednesdays from 1:00 pm – 2:00 pm. To reserve one of these specific time slots, please visit sippicanlandstrust.setmore.com.

Visitors not needing any special assistance can now visit the Osprey Marsh accessible boardwalk any day of the week without a reservation. Please be mindful if boardwalk is temporarily closed for those visitors requesting one of the abovementioned special appointments.

Sippican Lands Trust introduced its popular reservation system on June 4 to keep visitors safe during the pandemic and has modified the reservation system over the past few months to safely accommodate visitors at Osprey Marsh.

SLT’s Osprey Marsh is located on Point Road in Marion. The accessible boardwalk project builds on the generous donation by members of the Smoyer/Howland family of the 20-acre Osprey Marsh property of forest and marshland on Planting Island Cove. The project has been designed to minimize environmental impact and to maximize accessibility for infants in strollers, older adults, and persons with mobility impairments, including those in wheelchairs. The accessible boardwalk starts at the Osprey Marsh parking area and passes through maritime forest, wetlands, and fragile salt marsh habitat to a viewing platform overlooking Planting Island Cove.

Numerous SLT donors, members, and friends have stepped up to support this project, including a $38,000 grant from the Town of Marion’s Community Preservation Commission for project design and permitting. The boardwalk was designed by Peter Jensen and built by local contractors, W.S. Bradford and Sherman Briggs.

Sippican Lands Trust continues to seek donations from the public to support the long-term maintenance of this boardwalk. More information about the project and how to support it can be found at sippicanlandstrust.org/2017/10/osprey-marsh-boardwalk-project/.

Mattapoisett Library STEAM Projects To-Go
STEAM Projects To-Go brings a new project for January! STEAM Projects To-Go are created for busy teens grades 6 to 12 who still want to engage with library programming and their community. This month’s project will explore matter—anything that has mass and takes up space (or has volume). The project will be to fish for ice using ice, string, and salt. Further, it will inspire teens to take it one step further with a list of extension projects.

Each Steam Project To-Go includes supplies needed for the project, instructions, information about the theme, a library book related to the theme, and ideas for more projects. If you are interested in getting a STEAM to go project, register at the library’s website, mattapoisetlibrary.org, on the calendar, or by calling the library. Once you have registered, you will be contacted to arrange pickup (library card required). If there are no spots left, please register for the waiting list.

Please contact Michelle Skaar at mskaar@sailsinc.org or call the library for more information. All programs are free and open to the public.
